

The new Information Gateway is here!

Lindab are excited to be able to share the updated website

The Information Gateway is a web portal to simplify specification of Lindab building products by providing access to a suite of software and tools for CAD and BIM design. Lindab recognise the increasing demands on building designers and for some time have been developing the portal to be easier to use and much more mobile-friendly to support the demands of a modern working environment.

In addition to CAD add-ons, Revit extensions, Eurocode based design software and calculators, the new updated version of the Information Gateway website also supports multiple languages and allows you to keep up to date with news and releases.

Improved user account functionality makes it easier for you to manage your personal settings and meets legislation around data protection and privacy for individuals within the European Union.

Explore available software

You can easily find out information about the software that the Information Gateway offers, including the different versions available, and you can request user access to specific licensed software. Some, license-free software is always available for download. Visit the portal to view a list of the licensed and license-free software available.

Easy access to BIM objects

Lindab BIM elements are now part of the BIMObject® Cloud. The platform enables the objects to be kept up to date using version control, and works as an engine to get better collaboration between stakeholders and much more. For ease of use you can access the Lindab objects and manuals directly through the Information Gateway portal.

Visit informationgateway.lindab.com now to begin accessing the improved portal.
